

Anne K. Johnson
Bio

Anne Johnson began her career working on energy- and climate-related issues at the Pacific Northwest National Laboratory's Washington, D.C. office in 1991. Since that time she has worked on climate change issues at the International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis (IIASA) near Vienna, Austria, at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and at the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO), which she joined in 2001.